PAMBU NEWS

Digital copies of specific documents on PMB microfilms can now be scanned to disk, quite economically, for research users. The PMB is developing a strong digital capacity. For example, eleven rolls of PMB microfilms of Tuvalu land records (about 7,000 frames) have been scanned by W & F Pascoe Pty Ltd to one DVD, which holds pdf image files matching each of the documents. The disk copies have been made for the Tuvalu National Library and Archives, which does not have a microfilm reader, and for the British Library which helped fund the Tuvalu pilot project through its Endangered Archives Programme.

The British Library/Lisbet Rausing Foundation have allocated a further grant to Richard Overy and the PMB to continue working with the Tuvalu National Library and Archives on a major archives reformatting project in Funafuti and the outer-islands in 2006-2007. We expect to begin in late September 2006.

Over the last six months the PMB staff have mainly been occupied with in-house processing and domestic microfilming. Fr Kevin Kerley’s personal papers documenting his work in Bougainville, 1988-1998, were surveyed at the Marist Fathers’ monastery in Hunters Hill, Sydney, and part has been microfilmed. Fr Kerley was one of very few non-Bougainvilleans who stayed ‘behind the lines’ during the Bougainville crisis.

Fred Archer’s papers on the New Guinea island of Wuvulu, which are held by Mrs Mary Roberts, were microfilmed in Brisbane. Mr Archer managed Agita plantation on Wuvulu for a period, and maintained his links with the island through his later life. Mrs Roberts has completed her biography of Fred Archer, her uncle, and is looking for a publisher.

Ms Julie Olsson, of the Nauru Rehabilitation Committee, and Professor Barry Connell, the former Chief Justice of Nauru, put together a complete transcript of the proceedings of the Commission of Inquiry into the Rehabilitation of Worked-out Phosphate Lands in Nauru, 1987-1988, for the PMB to microfilm (PMB 1268). The original transcripts are now held on long-term loan by the National Library of Australia until such time as an adequate archival facility is available in Nauru.

The NLA lent the PMB its copy of Rev Shirley Baker’s very fragile, An English and Tongan Vocabulary, also a Tongan and English Vocabulary, with a list of idiomatic phrases; and Tongan Grammar, 1897. It has been microfilmed (PMB Doc 470) and the PMB has also produced an OCR’d scanned version of the dictionary.

A good run of the Pangu Pati Newsletter has also been microfilmed from copies on loan from the NLA and the Melanesian Studies Research Centre (UCSD).

Sheryl Stanborough, the Yap State Archivist, who visited Canberra in May with Anna Lemoilug Itimai, Assistant Yap Archivist, lent the PMB a rare set of contemporary Yapese newspapers, now microfilmed, as follows:

The newspapers are about to be returned to the Yap State Archives, together with a digital copy of the microfilms for reference use.

Sr Nancy White's papers on teaching with the Anglican mission, Oro Province, PNG, 1948-1967, have been arranged, listed and microfilmed (PMB 1260). The papers are to be returned to Professor John Waiko in Port Moresby, but the PMB has not been able to make contact with him recently.

Dr Roy Scragg lent the PMB a copy of his thesis, Lemankoa 1920-1980: A study of the effects of health care interventions on the people of a pre-industrial village in North Solomons Province, Papua New Guinea (1983), and some related papers which have been microfilmed (PMB Doc 473). Dr Scragg also deposited 68 files of Sir John Gunther’s papers on health administration in PNG. The PMB has made a preliminary list of them.

Hank Nelson’s comprehensive papers on kuru disease (the laughing death) in PNG, 1956-2001, have been arranged and microfilmed in part (PMB 1271). They include Sir John Gunther’s file on kuru, 1956-1976, which holds his correspondence with D. Carleton Gajdusek, V. Zigas, Roy Scragg, S.G. Anderson, F.M. Burnet and D.M. Cleland, and which documents the Nobel Prize in physiology and medicine jointly awarded to Baruch S. Blumberg and D. Carleton Gajdusek for their discoveries concerning new mechanisms for the origin and dissemination of infectious diseases.

Hank Nelson also transferred papers of David Moorhouse, a kiap, intelligence officer, and advisor to mining companies on land matters in PNG. A detailed list of Mr Moorhouse’s papers is available from the PMB, but access arrangements have not yet been clarified.

Other records which the PMB has received for microfilming, include:

- correspondence of the Banaban Heritage Society;
- Professor Ted Wolfers’ letters from PNG 1967-1971 (PMB 1276);
- transcripts of interviews and lectures on aspects of PNG history, 1972-75, collected by Professor Donald Denoon (PMB 1250);
- Paul and Dulcie Grant’s, Kweli Times: A Short History of the Apostolic Church Vanuatu 1946-1965 (PMB Doc 472);
- documents collected by Lionel Rhys Healey, OBE, relating to murders committed on 6 Nov 1953 in Telefomin, PNG (PMB 1265);
- letters of Cyril G.F. Cartwright from Ocean Island (Banaba) and the Gilbert Islands (Kiribati), 1934-1937 (PMB 1261);
- and papers deposited at the Royal Geographical Society by Leo Austen relating to his expedition to the upper Fly and Tedi Rivers area of Papua in 1922 (PMB 1272).
Pacific Research Collection established at the ANU

A Pacific research resources project will begin operation in the ANU Archives in July. Professor Stewart Firth, Director of the ANU Pacific Centre, will chair the project committee. Part of the ground floor of the ANU Library’s Menzies Building will be renovated to provide a special area for Pacific scholars and students to meet and study, and for the Library to show-case its Pacific reference materials.

An archivist will be appointed for three years to work on consolidating and disseminating research records gathered by Pacific scholars at the ANU over the last 50 years and by other Pacific researchers in Australia. In addition, a half-time cataloguer will be appointed for one year to integrate massive amounts of printed material, accumulated with the research records, into the ANU Library’s catalogue. The Pacific research resources project will develop a strong web-presence, making the research materials which it collects easily accessible.

There are many research records in the Coombs Building and at the offices, homes, garages and sheds of Pacific researchers in Canberra and elsewhere in Australia. The Pacific Research Collection will provide a secure repository for such material and, at the same time, build a unique research resource for Pacific studies.

The late Professor Stephen Wurm’s papers and audio recordings (34 archives boxes) have already been transferred from the PMB to the ANU Archives. With the permission of their owners, other research records that the PMB and Division of Pacific and Asian History have accommodated will also be transferred to the ANU Archives for inclusion in the Pacific Research Collection. They include records of Sir Colin Allan, Dorothy Shineberg, Ric Shand, Dorothy Crozier, Bill Coppell, Alan Ward, James Jupp, Peter Sack, Robert Norton, Hank Nelson, Donald Denoon and Robert Langdon. The ANU Archives will accession and permanently accommodate those records and other Pacific research material collected by the resources project.

The project is funded for three years by a combination of the International Centre for Excellence Asia-Pacific, the Research School of Pacific and Asian Studies, and the ANU’s Division of Information.

Adam Matthew Publications awarded distribution rights for PAMBU

PAMBU has reached an agreement with Adam Matthew Publications that grants the scholarly publisher exclusive global rights to sell and market selected PAMBU titles to universities, colleges and theological centres around the world.

Khal Rudin, Sales & Marketing Director for Adam Matthew Publications, said he is delighted that ‘this agreement will enable PAMBU to get further global recognition for their excellent holdings of archives, manuscripts and rare printed material relating to the Pacific Islands. It will also further enhance our reputation of supplying quality research material and strengthen our offerings of material relating to Pacific Island history and culture’.

For further information about Adam Matthew Publications please visit their website www.ampltd.co.uk.

AUSTRALIANS IN PAPUA NEW GUINEA – A DOCUMENTARY RECORD

Some years ago the then President of the Retired Officers’ Association of Papua New Guinea (ROAPNG) became concerned that valuable research material in the form of diaries, letters, manuscripts, patrol reports, maps and photographs risked being destroyed as their owners moved on. Through Una Voce, the Association’s quarterly journal, he suggested it be collected and preserved.

Peter Cahill, a Papua New Guinea historian, was approached to co-ordinate the collection, collation and – where possible – the identification of items. He in turn approached the Librarian in charge of the Fryer Special Collections Library within The University of Queensland Library who recognised the value the material would be to students and researchers. It was decided to house it in Fryer as the ROAPNG Papua New Guinea Collection. The Collection has since been re-named the Papua New Guinea Association of Australia Collection and complements other Papua New Guinea collections in Australia.

The material donated is a unique record of how (mainly) Australian men and women – public servants, missionaries, business employees or private individuals – lived and worked as they guided Papua New Guinea to Independence in 1975. Their success was acknowledged by Sir John Guise, the first Governor-General of Papua New Guinea, in his Independence Day comment that the Australian flag was being lowered, not torn down.

The drive to collect and preserve material has proved embarrassingly successful. A very brief sample of the diverse holdings includes:

- the Summary section of D.J. Clancy’s Special (Patrol) Report ex Lake Murray (19)47/48 in the Elevala/Black/Strickland and Nomad Rivers;
- diary of an escape from Japanese forces Madang/Mt Hagen January-May 1942;
- pre-war photographs of European lifestyles in Rabaul and other New Guinea centres;
- industrial relations material including surveys, wage determinations, arbitration hearings, awards 1980/1981; transcripts of industrial disputes;
- confidential circular of 25 Feb 46 – “Execution of Japanese war criminals”;
- a set of water-colour paintings of Papua New Guinea pre-WW II native costumes;
- (calendar) prints of pre- and post-war aircraft;
- report, sketch map and CD of area photographs of the Telefomin murders in November 1953;
- a diary of the occupation of Rabaul during WW1;
- Christmas Dinner menu on board the S.S. Katoomba 1941 at sea between Port Moresby (sic) and Brisbane;
- Tom Grahamslaw’s personal copy of his Recollections of Angau – 27th January 1942 to 25th October 1945;
- an extraordinary collection of ANGAU related material including District maps, plans and command structure;
- diaries and other records of an Anglican Church medical missionary in the Gona/Buna area from ca. 1948 to ca.1995.

The list goes on. The catalogue can be viewed online at: www.library.uq.edu.au/fryer/
The Collection number in UQFL387. Note that it is not yet digitised, so individual items cannot be viewed on-line.

Advice of items received is placed regularly in the PNGAA’s Newsletter Una Voce.

MICROFILMING PACIFIC ISLANDS RECORDS AT THE NATIONAL ARCHIVES (UK)

In the absence of plans elsewhere, the Australian National University Library began ordering microfilm copies of Colonial Office files on the Pacific Islands in 1994. (See: Maureen Kattau, ‘Microfilming of Pacific Records in the Public Record Office’, Pambu, 5:4, Nov 1996.) This microfilming program continues Australian Joint Copying Project microfilms of Colonial Office file series on the Western Pacific (CO 225 and CO 537) and Fiji (at CO 83). The Public Records Office (now National Archives) has supplied the ANU Library with 35mm microfilms of selected files in the following series:

- CO 83, piece Nos.245/1-264/4, Colonial Office: Fiji, Original Correspondence, 1948-1951, 10 reels.
Earlier this year, I was fortunate to be asked to conduct an acquisitions trip to French Polynesia and the Cook Islands on behalf of the National Library of Australia. Both excited and nervous at the prospect, I consulted a number of reports by other librarians who had conducted similar trips, both from the National Library of Australia and overseas libraries. One of those reports was Kathryn Creely’s interesting report of her collecting trip to PNG, Vanuatu and New Caledonia in July 2002 which appeared in the June 2003 issue of Pambu. In the same spirit of information sharing, I am contributing this brief survey of my own Pacific excursion.

NLA acquisitions visits to the region began in the early 1990s as a means of supplementing the material that is acquired through the more usual channels of library suppliers and publishers. The most notable and successful visit was conducted by Adrian Cunningham in 1995. Adrian on his three week journey also took in French Polynesia and the Cook Islands and, thus, his report became my main reference point in preparing for the trip. While some material had been acquired directly from the Cook Islands by an NLA staff member holidaying there in 2001, French Polynesia had not been attempted again since Adrian’s visit.

In 2005-2006 the ANU Library continued the copying program – the National Archives has supplied the Library with microfilms of selected files in the CO 1036 series, piece Nos. 1361-1615 (gaps), 1964-1966, adding a further 16 rolls to the collection. The microfilms are available for reference in the Menzies Building of the ANU Library. The ANU Library plans to order further microfilms of files in CO 1036, completing the series to 1967. It will also commence orders for microfilm copies of files in the subsequent series:

Duplicate copies of these microfilms are available from the National Archives, Reprographic Ordering Section.

Ewan Maidment
5th year. Most of the major publishers and booksellers were represented at the Salon and this enabled me to speak to many more people than would have been possible had I been relying on transport by foot or taxi, which would have been the case otherwise.

As my pre-trip research had shown, commercial and government publishing in French Polynesia is reasonably active compared with many other areas of the Pacific. There are four or five major commercial publishers in French Polynesia. M. Morillon, Director of the Service des archives, estimated that approximately 15 new commercial titles are published each year, but the number may be higher than this as between them Au Vent des Iles and Editions le Motu have published at least 16 titles within the last twelve months. Government publishing also appears very stable and institutions like the Institut de la Statistique, Imprimerie Officielle and Institut d'émission d'Outre-Mer (IEOM) seem to have well set-up publishing and distribution networks.

My visit to Rarotonga in the Cook Islands was quite a contrast to my week in Tahiti. Prior to my departure, I had contacted the National Library of the Cook Islands and Justina Nicholas, the Chief Librarian, kindly arranged an itinerary for my visit, which was a great help. I visited 17 institutions or government departments and one bookshop during my three days on the island. Commercial publishing in the Cook Islands is almost non-existent; except for a few rare privately published books, most non-government publications are published in New Zealand or elsewhere in the Pacific. However, there is a small but important amount of government documents being published. One of my most important and successful visits in terms of acquiring publications was visiting the Parliament where I was able to purchase back issues of a number of parliamentary publications for NLA.

A major difference between this trip and Adrian Cunningham’s visit in 1995 is the increased availability of websites in the region, particularly for government departments. The currency and use of these websites varies significantly, but in both French Polynesia and the Cook Islands some government publications are now available online as well as in print. While none of the commercial bookshops I contacted have websites yet, at least two commercial publishers in French Polynesia do and this should make it easier to order and select titles from the region in future.

The summary of material acquired is listed below, but it is difficult to put a quantifiable figure on the value of the information I gathered or contacts I made. For me, this was the most important aspect of the trip, but it will take a significant amount of follow-up work to capitalise on these results. In conclusion, I would like to endorse Kathryn Creely’s comments when she wrote in 2003 that: ‘the one constant that I found in the course of this trip was the genuine helpfulness of the people encountered. Without their assistance, this trip would have been a failure.’

In French Polynesia the following institutions were contacted:

- Service des archives de la Polynésie française;
- Société des études océaniennes;
- Institut de la Statistique de la Polynésie française;
- Université de la Polynésie française;
- Imprimerie Officielle;
- Conseil économique, social et culturel (CESC);
- Institut d'émission d'Outre-Mer (IEOM);
- Chambre de Commerce d’Industrie, des Services et des Métiers de Polynésie française (CCISM);
- Service du Commerce Extérieur;
- Assemblée de la Polynésie française;
- Haut-commissariat de la République en Polynésie française;
- Direction de la Santé;

New Guinea Papers of Ivan and Mary Clark at the NLA

In January this year Noreen Clark transferred papers of her parents to the National Library of Australia Manuscripts Section. Her father, Ivan Clark (1898-c.1942) was a medical assistant at Rabaul Hospital c1930-1942, went on patrols into New Guinea, and witnessed the 1937 eruption of Mt. Vulcan. His wife Mary (1902-1975), returned to Sydney in 1940 for Noreen’s birth, but Ivan remained and was killed after the Japanese invasion of Rabaul.

The papers (Acc06/3) amount to 5 shelf cm and are on open access. They cover the period 1926-1939. They consist of Mary Clark’s journal and letters to Norah McManus, 1930-1933 from Salamaaua, Lae, Kavieng and Lorengau; letters of Ivan Clark to Mary Clark, 1937, regarding the volcanic eruption at Rabaul, with photos, issues of the Rabaul Times for 4, 9 and 11 June 1937, a copy of Walkabout, March 1939, containing an article on ‘Rabaul’s volcanic eruptions’; and an album of photographs, c.1926-1929, entitled ‘Glimpses of Rabaul’, but containing photographs of people, dances, crops, volcanoes, views etc. in New Guinea as well as New Britain.

The Shipping Gazette and Sydney General Trade List (1844-1855)

A number of Australian newspapers from the 1840s and 1850s were recently made available online by the Australian National Library as part of the Ferguson Project. One of the most useful of these is The Shipping Gazette and Sydney General Trade List, as it contains, among other things, much material on the Pacific islands. Below is a list of some of these articles, organised by the islands referred to, together with the relevant date and page number of the issues concerned. These can be viewed online at, http://www.nla.gov.au/npapers/

Achilles Island – The Sydney brig Portenia calls in 1847 to recruit labourers to work in rural New South Wales (25/9/47, 608).

Amargura (Fonualei, Tonga Group) – A description of a volcanic eruption on the island, in October 1847 (14/11/46, 316).

Ascension Island (Ponape, Caroline Islands, Federated States of Micronesia) – A description of the island and the fifty or so European beachcombers living there (11/5/44, 61–62).

Bashee Islands (south of Taiwan?) – Description of the islands in 1844 when HMS Festal visited (15/11/45, 284).

Bonin Islands (Ogasawara Islands) – A description of these islands and their potential as whaling base (24/8/44, 159).

Byron’s Island (Nikunau, Kiribati) – The brig Portenia calls in 1847 to recruit labourers to work in rural New South Wales (25/9/47, 608)

Chain Islands (Anea Islands, Tuamotu Archipelago) – Description of an unsuccessful sandalwood voyage in 1843 by survivor Henry Clarke (20/9/45, 236–237).

Chatham Island – Details of the piratical seizure here of the brig Hannah in March 1844 (23/11/44, 237). Account of the loss of the whaler St Peter (Captain Young) of New Bedford (11/6/55, 125).

De Peysris (Nukufetau, Tuvalu) – The Portenia calls to recruit islanders to work in rural New South Wales (25/9/47, 608).

Eeg (Niue?) – The Sydney brig Portenia calls here in 1847 to recruit labourers to work in rural New South Wales (25/9/47, 608).

Ellice Islands (Tuvalu) – see De Peysris Island.

Eronan (Futuna, Vanuatu) – The Portenia calls in 1847 to recruit labourers to work in rural New South Wales (25/9/47, 608).

Euromanga (Erromanga, Vanuatu) – A list of visiting vessels that were cut out there and their crews killed between 1841 and 1848 (18/1/51, 16–17).

Gambier’s Islands (Timoe and Mangareva) – brief account (26/10/44, 207).

Gilbert Islands (Kiribati) – see Byron’s, Halls, Hope, Matthew and Perout Islands.

Guadalcanal (Solomon Islands) – Reports of the disappearance and search for the Sydney businessman Benjamin Boyd (29/11/51, 344; 20/12/51, 368; 14/8/52, 218; 25/6/53, 187).

Hall’s Island (Maiana, Kiribati) – The Italian brig Rosa (Captain Ferran) attacked on 23 April 1853 while trading for coconut oil. The Captain, mate, four crewmen killed & also about twenty of the attackers before they were driven off (16/7/53, 207).

Hanea (Tuamotus) – Visit by pearl shell divers in 1843 (20/9/45, 236).

Hawaiian Islands (Sandwich Islands) – A description of these islands, the economy, government, etc. (28/9/44, 184). A group of Hawaiians adrift in a whaleboat are rescued by the yacht Wanderer, February 1850 (11/5/50, 137).

Hope Island (Aorae, Kiribati) – The Sydney brig Portenia calls in 1847 to recruit labourers to work in rural New South Wales (25/9/47, 608).

Isle of Pines — Sailing directions for the island, (26/10/44, 206). The Sydney brig Portenia calls here in 1847 to recruit labourers to work in rural New South Wales (25/9/47, 608). A detailed description of the island and its inhabitants; visitors are advised to go ashore well armed and to be on their guard (3/3/49, 58). A list of visiting vessels cut out between 1841 and 1848 (18/1/51, 16). Details of a visit in 1854 by the British survey vessel HMS Torch (28/8/54, 157 & 11/9/54, 172–3). Details of 1854 visit by survey vessel HMS Herald (23/10/54, 203).

Jane Island — Description of the island in 1844 when HMS Vestal visited (15/11/45, 284).

Kerguelan Island — A description of the island by Sir James Clark Ross (14/8/52, 221).

Kings Mill Islands — see Mulgrave Island.

Lefou/Lafou (Lifou, New Caledonia) — A visit for sandalwood in 1844 by Captain T. Beckford Simpson (9/8/45, 201 & 23/8/45, 214–15 & 13/9/45, 228–30). The Velocity (Captain Kirssopp) brings to Sydney 65 Pacific Islanders, including 23 from Lefou to work on Ben Boyd's Maneroo stations as shepherds (24/4/47, 471). The Sydney brig Portenia calls to recruit labourers to work as shepherds in rural New South Wales (25/9/47, 608).

Loyalty Islands (New Caledonia) — The HMS North Star about to leave Sydney for these and other islands to investigate “the late outrages committed on different British vessels” (22/6/44, 99). A detailed description of the island and its inhabitants (3/3/49, 54). A British naval vessel calls to show the flag and discourage attacks on visiting ships (18/1/51, 16&17). Visit in 1854 by British survey vessel HMS Torch (Captain Lewis) (28/8/54, 157). See also Mare.

Mackill's Island (Pingelap, Caroline Islands) — Captain Obed Luce and a boat's crew from the US whaler Boy are massacred here (13/9/51, 266).

Manua (Samoan Group) — Castaways arrive there in 1843 (20/9/45, 237).

The British government had sent out town planners to Funafuti in 1960 to guide development of the increasingly crowded urban settlement and in 1973, following a major cyclone, it constructed new housing at Funafuti. By 1993, when George Clarke visited Tuvalu to carry out his survey, the Tuvalu government was lobbying for new houses. The late George Clarke was an architect and town planner by profession, who also worked as a consultant on human settlements for the World Bank, United Nations, AusAID and others. He was concerned about the slumming down of Pacific communities and consequent health decay. His report addresses these problems and tries to stimulate cultural revival and eco-tourism. (George Clarke’s father, William Clarke, had helped established the Bita-paka wireless station, near Rabaul, in 1924 and subsequently became Manager of AWA Australia-Pacific Radio, making many trips back to New Guinea.)

Professor R.T. Shand is a distinguished academic whose more recent research focuses on agricultural development in South Asia. He was based in the Department of Economics, Research School of Pacific and Asian Studies, Australian National University, from 1961 until 1999. His early interest in agricultural economics in Papua New Guinea, in particular cash crop development, is documented in these papers. Professor Shand directed a 3-year study of the development of cash-cropping in PNG for the Reserve Bank of Australia, 1963-65. In 1967-1968 he was a member of a committee advising on the first Five Year Plan for the economic development of PNG. In 1970 he was a member of a Board of Inquiry into Rural Minimum Wages in PNG. He has also been a consultant to the Asian Development Bank on matters relating to PNG and was a member of its 1975 Mission to PNG.

CONTENTS Unpublished papers on rural development, economics and labour in Papua New Guinea. The papers include reports on agricultural economics and cash crops by the Australian Bureau of Agricultural Economics (BAE) and the Commonwealth Scientific and Industrial Organisation (CSIRO), 1947-48; reports on PNG economics and development by Raymond Firth, J.W. Davidson, O.K.H. Spate, C.S. Belshaw and T.W. Swan, 1951-53; J.G. Crawford’s file on ANU projects in PNG, 1959; various government, bank and international organisations’ reports, 1947-1991; report and transcript of a Board of Inquiry into Rural Minimum Wages in PNG, 1970.

Barry Mitcalfe, who died in 1986, envisaged a new group, the Peace Media Organisation, having two distinct thrusts. One was to engage in peace research and the other was to demonstrate to the world the strength of New Zealand’s opposition to French testing in the Pacific and peoples’ longing for a peaceful world. (Mitcalfe’s papers are held at the University of Canterbury Library.) The documents microfilmed Greenpeace New Zealand Office in Auckland record NZ press reactions to the protest voyages of the Fri and Greenpeace III (formerly Vega) in 1973. The Pacific Peace Odyssey documentation includes minutes of a Greenpeace NZ meeting on 25 Sep 1974 attended by Irene Peterson, Bruce Peterson, David Moodie, Betty Johnson, Elaine Shaw and Wendy Armstrong.

• Greenpeace. A scrapbook compiled by the crew of the Rainbow Warrior I, Mar-Jun 1985 while transferring 260 Marshallese forced to leave their homeland of Rongelap Atoll to resettle on Majuro Atoll, 160km away.
